Short story by Vikas Sharma

Bright minds, new tools

A little girl sits at a desk with a sketchbook and a small robot beside her. She is not afraid of the machine. She is curious. She draws, asks, tests and draws again, as if the future were a puzzle made just for her.

Our children will grow up with tools we never imagined. What they still need from us is the same as always: curiosity, good habits, and a plan for their education. Back-to-school is a good time to start an RESP, talk about money at the dinner table, and let them see us learning too.
